THE HOT WATER CURE.

Effectively Applied by an Australian Settler's Wife.
Wives of "squatters," or farmers, in Australia are often left entirely alone at the farmhouse and are more or less subjected to danger in consequence. A traveler writes: "I know of a squatter's wife who was left to her own devices in this way, while all the men of the station were mustering cattle—a business which on large open plains takes weeks to complete. One morning a party of natives arrived and, finding her alone, demanded food, threatening death if she failed to bring it. 'Oh, yes,' answered the lady coolly, speaking their own dialect, 'I feed you well, very well, now master away. You come along a kitchen. You sit down all the same white man. I get you budgory tuck-out (splendid food). In no time a score of blacks were squatting round the kitchen, while the lady produced all the food available. Then she filled all the pots, kettles and blilies she could find and put them on to boil—for tea, as doubtless her guests thought—while they gobbled and jabbered, growing more and more uproarious. Presently the water boiled, and then my lady—her natural compassion slain by her desperate need—seized a quart pot in either hand and dashed the boiling water along each row of naked figures. This she did again and again, shrieking, 'I give you budgory tuck-out!' while the blacks yelled in pain and terror, tumbling over each other to get out of the house, screaming that she was no white woman at all, but a dabble-dabble. Neither could they ever be induced to return to that station, inhabited, as they were convinced, by a dangerous devil."—Chicago News.

MISPLACED MONUMENTS.

Helpless Figures, Soiled and Grimy, in Stone and Bronze.
The ordinary run of statues, unless they are royal, have only one real pleasant and satisfactory day in their existence, and that is the day they are unveiled. If stone, on that day they are spotlessly clean. If bronze, they are nice and shiny. After that they are never clean or shiny again. It has to be the statue of a very exalted personage for the soot to be scraped off and to have its face washed once a year. The average hero has to be satisfied with being unveiled. After that no one takes any further interest in him. But it is most instructive to observe the unholy skill with which the soot and other accidents of the air will lodge on the top of a venerable bald head and on the surface of what should be an immaculate frock coat or a well fitting uniform. A Roman toga that has met with accidents is not half so ridiculous as a bronze frock coat and immaculate bronze trousers that have been the scene of disaster. Standing in front of the statue of a great statesman, a man notably tidy in his day and a great worry to his valet, I studied the undignified results of a family of sparrows that had set up housekeeping under his elbow and thought how indignant he would be could he catch a glimpse of this unseemly domestic arrangement.—Mrs. John Lane in Fortnightly Review.

Lost Her Prestige.

A New York woman, not being content with the reputation she enjoys of being one of the most beautiful women in her state, has literary aspirations. Recently she was a guest at luncheon when the conversation drifted to books and plays. Various discussions followed. The beauty took part and expressed herself freely. But when she asked her listeners whether they considered herself a psychological and pathological writer she handed out a stunner.
A graveyard silence reigned until one girl, who was bolder than the rest, asked what pathological meant.
Here is where the beauty lost literary prestige.
"I looked it up a few days ago," she replied, "but I cannot remember just now what it means."—New York Times.

An Artemus Ward Story.

When Artemus Ward was at the height of his fame he received a telegram from Tom Maguire, then the leading amusement manager of the Pacific slope. It asked Artemus, who was then delivering his funny lecture in New York, what he would take for fifty nights in California. The prompt and laconic response was "Brandy and water." Maguire somehow failed to see the point, and he wired Ward for an explanation. He got it in the shape of a thirty word message costing $10.50, for rates were high in those days, which stated that a diagram would be sent by the following mail.

Not Prepared.

"What is a third of fifty-three and a third?" asked her friend, who was adding up her weekly accounts.
"If you'll wait I'll run home and get my diploma and show you that I am a college graduate and a woman of mind," she returned, "but don't spring questions like that on me all of a sudden."—New York Press.

Jamestown Commemorative Postage Stamps.

Order of Postmaster General, Office of Third Assistant Postmaster General, Washington, D. C., Nov. 4, 1907.

Many people like to use the commemorative issues of postage stamps because of their distinctive designs, and stamp collectors generally desire them for philatelic purposes, but put off their purchase until after the sale of the stamps has been discontinued, and are then disappointed because the Postmaster cannot supply them. This disappointment can be avoided by purchasing at once all the Jamestown commemorative stamps that may be desired. While the sale of these stamps is to be discontinued by postmasters after Nov. 30, those remaining in the hands of the public after that date will continue to be good for postage indefinitely.

If their stocks are exhausted, postmasters will make special requisition on the Third Assistant Postmaster General for commemorative stamps, provided 100, or multiples of 100, of each denomination desired are ordered by patrons.

Patrons who wish to procure Jamestown commemorative stamps will please notify the postmaster.

RECOMMENDS THIS HOME MIXTURE

NOTED AUTHORITY GIVES SIMPLE REMEDY FOR KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLE.

This is a message that will bring happiness again into many families and sunshine into the lives of hundreds of disheartened and discouraged men and women here. It requires just a little inconvenience, for it can't be bought already prepared. It is a simple home recipe now being made known in all the larger cities through the newspapers. It is intended to check the many cases of rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble which have made so many cripples and invalids and weaklings of some of our brightest and strongest people.

The druggists here have been notified to supply themselves with the ingredients, and the sufferer will have no trouble to obtain them. The prescription is as follows: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce, and Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle. The dose is one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Recent experiments, even in severe hospital cases, prove this simple mixture the remedy for rheumatism, because of its positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It compels these most vital organs to filter from the blood and system the waste impurities and uric acid which are the cause of rheumatism. It cleanses the kidneys, strengthens them and removes quickly such symptoms as backache, blood disorders, bladder weakness, frequent urination, painful, scalding and discolored urine. It acts as a powerful stimulant to the entire kidney and bladder structure, puts new life into them and invigorates the entire tract. It makes the kidneys clean the blood. The Dandelion will take care of liver trouble and constipation, and is fine for the stomach.

All the ingredients, states a well-known local druggist, are of vegetable extraction, making it a safe and harmless prescription at any time.

Those who suffer and are accustomed to purchase a bottle of patent medicine should not let a little inconvenience interfere with making up this prescription. Wherever this becomes generally known, states a large Eastern publication, it ruins the sale of the patent medicines and so-called rheumatism and kidney cures, which is its best endorsement of virtue.

NOTICE TO MY PATRONS:

On November 14th, 1907, I am going to make a change in my business methods

I Am Going to Change It To a Cash System.

The reason for so doing is that I find it impossible to give proper satisfaction under the present method, as I cannot do all the delivering myself—and drivers make mistakes—and therefore cause confusion in accounts, besides creating hard feelings. Also, on the above date, I will make but one size loaf; it will be a larger loaf than I am now making, and strictly a FIVE-CENT LOAF, "not six for twenty-five cents." I will have tickets for those who want them, but they will be TWENTY FOR ONE DOLLAR. If anyone still has the old tickets on or after the above mentioned date I will exchange them for new tickets. That is, give five new tickets for six old ones.

Very Respectfully,

F. H. EILENBERGER.
